

PRESS RELEASE

GFT inboxx BPM business division subject of management buy-out BPM suite taken over by Inspire Technologies GmbH

Hamburg – August 1st, 2008 – GFT inboxx, the leading provider of unified archiving solutions in Europe, today announced that its BPM product suite is being transferred to an independent company as part of a management buy-out. The new company, called Inspire Technologies GmbH, is headquartered in St. Georgen, Germany. Inspire Technologies is taking over the 'Inspire' BPM product, together with the BPM division's development team and maintenance contracts. GFT inboxx and Inspire Technologies will conclude partnership contracts, to mutually support each other in the development and implementation of solutions.

"The conversion of GFT inboxx into a focused provider of innovative archiving solutions is thus concluded," comments Joachim Moser, managing director of GFT inboxx GmbH. "We are delighted at being able to place the successful BPM business, in connection with the Inspire product, into the reliable hands of the current management."

"Independence gives us the necessary space to concentrate on the development and marketing of our product," explains Dr Michael Otte, managing director of Inspire Technologies. "The BPM market is growing rapidly, and we will be able to react even more quickly to market trends and our customers' requirements in this new form. In preliminary discussions with current customers and partners, we have received very positive feedback on this step."
